Kevin Snyder Bio

(longer bio option – 295 words – ideal for websites where you have more space)

At the age of just 12, Kevin Snyder was diagnosed with depression and an eating disorder that nearly took his life. As his recovery began, so did his passion for understanding what drives inner motivation, finding hope and rebounding through adversity.

Kevin’s journey of self-discovery inspired him to become the Founder and CEO of EmpowerYOUth™ providing inspirational leadership programs equipping K-12 youth and college students with leadership skills to thrive. He would then write several best-selling books and pursue a career in Student Affairs, most recently being the Dean of Students at High Point University. He has also worked at the University of South Carolina, University of Central Florida, University of South Florida and Embry-Riddle Aeronautical University. Kevin’s Doctorate degree and research focused on student retention and success factors amongst first generation college students.

After a few hundred speeches to high schools, colleges and Toastmasters groups, Kevin began receiving requests to speak for all types of corporate events, association conferences and professional development trainings. To date Kevin has presented leadership training programs and empowering motivational keynotes to over 1,000,000 people across 1,150 audiences in all 50 states and around the world. Clients include JetBlue, Anheuser-Busch, FedEx, Orkin, CAT, TIAA, Bank of America, SHRM, the United States Airforce, hundreds of various associations, and over 500 colleges and universities.

Kevin is also a certified sky diver, scuba diver, sailed around the world aboard Semester at Sea and presented a TEDx talk. Later this year he will be attempting a Guinness World Record for the longest speech in history ... but don’t worry, it’s a speech he will NOT be giving to your audience.

Kevin’s “claim to fame” though is that he lived his childhood dream of meeting Bob Barker and winning BIG on the television game show, The Price is Right! www.KevinCSnyder.com
